The appropriate extension fee under 37 CFR 1.17(a) is calculated from: (1) the expiration date of the shortened statutory period for reply originally set in the final Office action; or (2) as set forth in (b) above, if checked. Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of the final rejection, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

/Ayaz R. Sheikh/ Supervisory Patent Examiner, Art Unit 2476

Continuation to section 11:

Applicant's representative contends that current specification is replete with sufficient support to enable a person of ordinary skill in the art to understand and know and recognize the electronic test instrument.

Examiner respectfully disagrees. The original disclosure of the current application does not contain sufficient information to enable the broad scope of the claims. For instance, what is being tested or solved are not addressed by the current disclosure. Note: the rejection does not address the relationship between the test instrument and the network as applicant's representative has explained in the remark page 8. The rejection is mainly directed to the electronic test instrument (as a device) and not how it is being used in the current application. Therefore, 112 rejection is maintained.

Applicant's representative argues that examiner has not made any sort of rational as to why would a PHOSITA find it obvious to replace the computing device 30, of Loveland, as a test instrument.

Moreover, Official notice unsupported by documentary evidence should only be taken by the examiner where the facts asserted to be well-known, or to be common knowledge in the art are capable of instant and unquestionable demonstration as being well-known. As noted by the court in In re Ahlert, 424 F.2d 1088, 1091, 165 USPQ 418, 420 (CCPA 1970), the notice of facts beyond the record which may be taken by the examiner must be "capable of such instant and unquestionable demonstration as to defy dispute" (citing In re Knapp Monarch Co., 296 F.2d 230, 132 USPQ 6 (CCPA 1961)).

Examiner respectfully disagrees. As previously submitted (support for the official notice submitted in PTO-892 dated 10-28-2009). Examiner took an official notice that it is well known and preferred in the art that the computers can test the network by sending test packets, ping and traceroute commands (which are notoriously known and available to any person in the art) to test the network, determine network topology, and determine liveness of network terminals or elements in a network. Thus, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to test the network using the electronic device of Loveland for at least the reasons stated above. Consequently, the 103 rejection is maintained.
